Description

With its live edges, this piece is a mesmerizing combination of ancient history and natural beauty. It's crafted from a solid piece of petrified wood, which was once a living tree millions of years ago. The stool retains the original beauty even with its polished edges, showcasing the intricate contours of the bark and inner rings. Petrified wood is fossilized and has transformed into stone over millennia, resulting in a remarkable piece that's both functional and a testament to the earth's geological wonders. This unique stool adds a touch of rustic elegance to any space while serving as a conversation starter.
